

Good But Not Religious (GBNR)

FEBRUARY 2020 - A monthly update on Keith Martin's work as a nonreligious chaplain and educator at U. Waterloo, U. Guelph and online

U. OF GUELPH

Highlights at U. of Guelph in January: (1) the first Multi-Faith Resource Team meeting of the semester, where Keith shared excerpts from A Celebration of Jenny's Life, especially his tribute to Jenny; (2) our first Good But Not Religious Monthly Get-together, where 8 of us listened to the song, "Good Without a God," heard Thomas Rauchenstein share his spiritual journey, and watched excerpts from "Letting Go of God" by Julia Sweeney; and (3) the first 2 meetings of the Being and Doing Good discussion group, with 6 of us exploring and critiquing The Road Less Traveled (Section 1) by M. Scott Peck.

In January Keith met with 9 students and alumni during drop-in office hours, and talked with several more during his monthly SBNR Guelph display table day & Club Days.

Highlights at U. of Waterloo in January: (1) the first 2 meetings of the Being and Doing Good discussion group, with 4 of us exploring and critiquing The Road Less Traveled (Section 1) by M. Scott Peck; and (2) planning for "Being Human: Meaning Without Religion" with Doug Cowan on Feb. 6, co-sponsored with SOFREE (Society of Free Thinkers).

Keith met with 3 students during drop-in office hours, and talked with several more during his monthly SBNR Waterloo display table day in the Student Life Centre.

Keith will share excerpts from A Celebration of Jenny's Life with the UW Chaplaincy Association on February 25.
